WIN TICKETS TO COUNTRY SHOW

By Karen Davis

ORGANISERS are working together to help raise awareness of the roles carers play in helping vulnerable people.

Carers Week, which has been running since Monday and finishes on Sunday, highlights the vital contribution made by carers to their families and communities in providing unpaid care for people who are ill, frail or disabled.

Local agencies, including Southend Borough Council, NHS including South East Essex and private and theme for the week, entitled 'A Life of My Own', calling for the recognition of carers who all too often feel isolated or lonely.

It is estimated that about 80 per cent of local carers are not known to local agencies and they are therefore unable to access a variety of services and help available to them.

Jacqui Lansley, head of community and strategy for Southend Borough Council, said: "Carers are the unsung heroes of our society.

"We hope that Carers Week road-shows will encourage local carers to come and talk to us to find out about a multitude of help and services available to them.

"The support that carers give is immense - they save the state an estimated £87 billion. It's so important that carers, in turn, receive the help they need and deserve."

A roadshow was due to take place today (Wednesday) between 10am-4pm at ASDA Shoeburyness, while two more will be taking place at Southend Hospital tomorrow and Friday.

Services include access to support groups, advice and information from carers' organisations, opportunities to take breaks and

There will also be information stands for carers at Shoebury Fair, Shoeburyness High School, on Saturday, and at the Community in Harmony event, on Sunday, at Southend High School for Boys between 1pm-6pm.

Toni's husband, Geoff, suffers from a rare condition known as scleroderma, which is a chronic autoimmune disease characterised by fibrosis, vascular alterations and autoantibodies. Geoff has to have dialysis

Sara Ferguson, from the project, said: "Sadly, it is a sign of the times that more and more people are using the Storehouse.

"Everyone here works with the purpose of showing those in need that even in the modern world, there are still people who care about them."

A MAN from Southend has been found guilty of two counts of rape and one count of sexual assault following a two-week trial at Basildon Crown Court.

Phillip Lucas, 22, formerly of Central Avenue, was found guilty of offences that happened in Southend in April 2008 and August 2009.

The first offence hap-pened in Southend High Street in the early hours of the morning.

The victim was a 21year-old local woman.

The second occurred in Weston Road, Southend, again in the early hours of the morning.

This girl, aged 17 at the time, was both raped and sexually assaulted. She was Detective Inspector Jim Sandford, from Southend CID, said: "This man was known to his victims and he preyed on them while on nights out to take advan-tage of them in the worst possible way.

"By denying he was responsible for these offences, he forced his victims to relive their ordeals giving evidence in court.

"Tribute must be paid to these young women for the courage they have shown in helping bring this predatory man to justice.

The sentencing of Lucas was adjourned for up to four weeks for reports to be prepared.

He was remanded in court custody.

THE build up to the World Cup has been immense. For weeks, adverts have been choc-a-block with football related themes, shops are full of England paraphernalia and the papers, radio and TV shows have been punditing themselves up to the eyeballs.

And here at YA Towers we have been doing our bit too. We started off with the obligatory office sweepstake (I pulled out Nigeria, for those of you interested).

In the following weeks, flags for many of the nations have been ordered off the internet and now hang from the newsroom ceiling above the desks of those who pulled them from the hat in the sweep

On Friday, we staged a World Cup buffet, where we each cooked up a dish to represent our adopted nation.

There was a superb array of food on offer and so pleased was I with my Nigerian-style coconut rice that I went home and cooked another batch for dinner that evening.

And so, with all this build up and excitement, the tournament began with an excellent opening ceremony followed by a good match between South Africa and Mexico. It was fairly predictable, though, that the fun and excitement would not last too long this is England after all.

Following the 1-1 draw with the US, the doom-mongers swiftly emerged and told us we may as well pack up and go home now.

'Goalkeepers are useless, midfielders are useless and strikers can't score,' seemed to be the general consensus, but I, however, am not on that bus.

England have as much chance as any other side of winning the competition, so now is not the time to lose hope.

If we fail to progress from this group then yes, we can moan and groan and demand Capello's salary back. But until then, we should stay positive and back our team to fulfill the potential they undoubtedly have.

LOCAL residents can now view and compare information about local GP practices following the launch of a new service by NHS South East Essex.

A new online tool allows people to access information about what services are available at their local GP surgeries such as cervical screening, minor surgery and immunisations.

Visitors can also find out additional information about GP surgeries, including whether a female GP is available, extended opening hours and patient survey results.

A GP practice comparison tool also allows members of the public to view key information about an individual GP practice and compare it to any other practice in the area.

Dr Rupert Halliday, medical director for NHS South East Essex, said: "There is a great deal of demand for information about GP services.

"This new facility will help patients to make an informed decision about which practice best suits their needs and those of their family, whether it is based on the availability of extended hours, or the range of clinics and services offered."

The service is available via NHS South East Essex's website at www.see.nhs.uk/findyourgp

Show some respect for ambulance staff

By Matthew Stanton

MORE than 115 assaults on ambulance crews in Essex were reported to police last year. The East of England Ambulance Service released the figures for 09/10 - with 24 of those reported as physical assaults.

Incidents included verbal abuse and shouting, spitting at staff and crews being punched and kicked.

Officials have now called for 'respect' as the World Cup gets underway and there are fears that most incidents will involve patients who have been drinking.

Neil Storey, associate director for emergency operations, stressed the Trust would not 'tolerate' abuse or violence against its staff. He said: "When you respond to a

999 call, the very last thing you expect is to be repaid with physical or verbal abuse.

"It's unacceptable for anyone to be threatened, but particularly so when attacks are made on our staff who are there to help save lives and give aid to the public.

"Our staff have the right to carry out their duties without fearing for their safety."

The Trust said it encouraged staff to report any abuse and always pursued prosecution.

All staff - including call takers are required to undertake a 'dynamic risk assessment' for each incident to identify whether police support is needed.

Figures for the whole of the East of England show there were almost 400 assaults last year, of which 110 were physical assaults.

Tributes paid to a 'dedicated' PC

TRIBUTES have been paid to a police officer who died after falling out of a police car in Stratford while chasing crooks.

An inquest at Walthamstow Coroners Court last Thursday heard how PC Gary Toms, from Canvey, suffered a blow to the head in Ashlin Road on April 11, 2009.

The 37-year-old, who was part of the Specialist Firearms Command, had been called to an aggravated burglary possibly involving a firearm at an address in

His team saw a silver Chrysler believed to have been involved in the burglary and decided to stop it, but the car then sped off.

An attempt to contain the suspects in a cul-de-sac ended up with PC Toms falling out of the vehicle.

He died six days later in hospital.

Chief Supt Bill Tillbrook, from Specialist Firearms Command, said: "Gary's death is incredibly sad.

"His colleagues have spoken about how hard-working and well-liked he was, and what a good sense of humour he had.

"He was a dedicated officer who died doing the job he had been trained to do.

"The loss of Gary is felt by us all in the Command and will not be forgotten by the wider Met family. My thoughts are with his family, friends and colleagues."

The four people in the car were later con-victed of robbery and other offences.

They were jailed in December 2009 for a total of 30 years.
The Met Police stressed the specialist command was trained to deal with potentially armed suspects and respond to unfolding situations they were likely to face.

Bosses said the Forces do 'everything possible' to make sure officers are best able to keep themselves and the public safe.

The inquest heard how the MPS took immediate action after the accident to address the concerns relating to the circumstances of Gary's tragic death.

Coroner Dr Elizabeth Stearns gave her ver-dict as death by acciand visitors Southend Hospital received a boost to their personal safety, thanks to a free crime reduction event last week.

More than 100 staff and members of the public received purse chains and personal attack alarms, UV pens for marking valuable property and had their bicycles fitted with electronic security tags.

The event was organised by Southend Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership and Southend Hospital's own security team, as part of the new Hospital Watch initiative launched earlier this year.

The scheme aims to reduce crime and anti-social behaviour in and around the hospital and to help reassure staff, patients and visitors by improving security.

Chris English, spokesman for Southend Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership, said: "The Hospital Watch event was a great success, offering real help and advice to both staff and members of the public.

"The strong partnership that exists between the police, council and hospital security team provides a robust approach to tackling instances of crime in the area

Caroline Gregory, travel plan co-ordinator at Southend Hospital, said: "The roadshow Southend ensures that staff and visitors are able to regularly access personal safety information and advice.'

Southend Borough Council's waste and recycling team were also on hand to give out reusable shopping bags, recycling sacks and offer tips on reducing household waste.

The next Hospital Watch event will be on Wednesday, September 1, from 2-4pm. For more information, con-

A FAILING FLAT ROOF & THE WARNING SIGNS

As a felt roof breaks down leaking water will often cause unforeseen damage before any problems are visibly detected. Felt becomes brittle and cracks around exposed edges, pipes, rooflights etc. Blistering to the surface along with moss & algae will eventually cause roof failure. Alarmingly insurers will no longer cover any damage external or internal caused by a leaking flat roof, any such claim is categorised as wear & tear unless proven storm damage.

In 1999 we first introduced the highest technology in flat roofing to the homeowner. Protan, our preferred single-ply membrane has a proven track record stretching over 4 decades along with a worldwide reputation. This flat roof system is now the No 1 choice of many leading architects.

THE HIGH-TECH SOLUTION & ALL THE ANSWERS

A High-Tech membrane roof is dimensionally stable, solar reflective & 100% resistant to moss & algae. A maintenance free breathable membrane creates a roof system that will never blister, become brittle or crack and is unaffected by climate change. All joins carry a permanent fusion weld giving a 100% storm resistant watertight flat roof guaranteed for life. The unique anti slip finish allows the roof to be walked on and offers real value & quality.

Cycle ride for fallen soldier

By Matthew Stanton

TWO cyclists braved 988-miles of terrain to remember a Hockley solider who died in battle.

Beverley Harvey and David Pitt cycled from Lands End to John O'Groats in 14 days for Lieutenant Aaron Lewis, who lived in Rectory Road and was killed on active service in Afghanistan on December 15, 2008.

More than £6,000 has been raised so far with cash going towards the The Citadel Memorial Fund, which will be placed at the entrance to the barracks of the 29 Commando Regiment Royal Artillery in Plymouth.

Beverley, of Trinity Wood Road, Hockley, said: "I had only cycled a mile before and compared to the rest of the country, Essex is extremely flat. We thought Essex Way was Beverley and David decided to train for the challenge in December after their sons, Lewis Harvey and Michael Pitt, both 27, played rugby with Lt Lewis.

The cyclists' hard work was repaid when the Mr Lewis' parents, Barry and Helen, greeted them with champagne as they completed their marathon cycle ride.

The choir welcomes adult members of all levels of experience and from all walks of life and, best of all, there are no auditions.

Emma recently took the choir to BBC Radio 3's 'Choir of the Year' competition and you will be able to hear one of their competition songs at the concert.

The concert takes place at Crowstone St George's URC in Crowstone Road.

The couple, 73 and 72, were forced to move into houses in Essex to avoid 'doodlebugs' although the Germans were although the county.

Serman device

destroyed Pauline's London home, killing her neighbour, before she moved to a cottage in Noak Hill and then into a house in Havering Road, Romford.

Meanwhile, a young David went to stay in Bulphan, Thurrock, to avoid fire.

Pauline said: "I remember when a German pilot crashed down in Brentwood after being shot and he made his way across to Noak Hill and knocked on a nearby cottage.

"He was shot in both legs and went to hospital where he survived his injuries. I wrote to the Berlin Record Office and found out that he died in 1992.

"As for the Blitz, I can't remember too much because I was a youngster, although the image of my collapsed house will always stick with me."

David and Pauline's mothers knew each other before the Blitz and the couple fell for each other after meeting at a wedding in East Ham. The married in Romford in 1959.

The experiences of life on the home front brought the retired couple, from Burnham, closer together and they now hold exhibitions and talks across the East of England. Residents were given demonstrations at Hullbridge Library last Tuesday with former church minister David dress-ing up as former Prime Minister, Winston Churchill.

Libraries, schools and other organisations have invited them to put on displays with memorabilia such as gas masks, shelters and other items from the Second World War.

In one school they even carried out an evacuation.

Two weeks ago, the historians held talks in Pauline's old ans nerd tarks in Fathine's old school - Parklands School in Romford - and this month, they will also visit the Church of England Club, in Leigh, and or England Crub, in Leigh, and an organisation on Canvey. David said: "We have both experienced life on the home front but we have also carried out lots of research for question and answer sessions.

"It's nice to get people of all ages talking to us. Schoolchildren want to learn and elderly residents like to share. It's very rewarding."
Outside of demonstrations, the couple visited St Paul's Cathedral last year to mark the 70 year anniversary of the first evacuation that took place in September 1, 1939.

Museum plan is an insult

THE 'bold design' for a 'world class' museum for our Saxon Noble's treasures has to be regarded as an insult to the residents of Southend, at a cost of £35million and God knows how much in architects, AEW fees.

We have to ask if Southend Council is on the same planet as the rest of us? We are in a time of dire financial restraint and yet our council plans monstrosities such as this.

We are talking about a time in history somewhere around 650 AD and the council want to put the treasures in a glass bowl as well as previously wishing to concrete over the location where the finds were made (Camp Bling.)

Surely the residents should have a say in the location and design of the museum and the cost. Modern architecture is fine, but for a museum of 5th century artifacts?

century artifacts?
Surely such a building as Porter's, which could be copied and constructed at a much smaller, figure compared to the £35million (starting figure) would be far more appropriate. Or why not Priory Park Museum at minimal cost?

We know the Cliffs require supporting to prevent further slippage but is this really the way to go?

I truly believe Southend Council is out of touch, out of control and has no idea what Southend is truly all about.

It plans to spend money we do not have, the country does not have and no thanks, we do not wish to borrow it!

Brian Ayling Chairman Liberal Democrat Group, Southend East

Don't tell Jessica what she should do

JIM Dellow, in offering sympathy to the girl excluded from school for having the nerve to want to choose the colour of her hair (YA Letters, Jun 9), adds the reservation that her new hairstyle makes her look 'very adult' and asks: 'Is that necessary or desirable for her?'

With all due respect, the answer to that question is: It's none of your business, mate.

Mr Dellow goes on to tell Jessica exactly what she should do, and adds that she will be 'incredibly stupid' should she fail to follow his advice. Brilliant!

This is exactly the best and most sensitive thing to say to a young girl who is currently having to come to the painful realisation that the school-system is, behind a sleazy veneer of false concern, a cruel and crypto-fascist institution that will, without a hint of kindness or conscience, attempt to ruin any student who dares assert a bare hint of individuality.

Cycle lane is just a joke

I WANTED to agree with last week's writer (YA Letters, Jun 9) about the new cycle lane being an accident waiting to happen as he was spot on.

happen as he was spot on.
I have experienced the same problems.

A gentle cycle along the front was more than stressful to say the least.

Car doors swung open every few feet. People unpacking, putting kids into buggys in the cycle lane as they park their cars next to the lane from the peir to the casino.

It's only a matter of time before a child getting out of a parked car gets hit by a cyclist or a cyclist gets struck by a car door opening.

door opening.

What kind of idiot comes up with these daft money making schemes that put evenyone at risk? I really have lost all faith in the local council.

And to top it all, the car parking outside popular Rossi's is so tight now you have to stop and back into the spaces so traffic will be worse in the summer months creating more fumes and chaos for all

beach front strollers

More importantly, longer cars have to encroach on the new cycle lane space in order to park properly. I saw numerous cars edge into the lane while trying to park so again, how long before a cyclist is hit by a car? It's a joke with a capital J.

Going veggie can risk your health

JUSTIN Kerswell's letter on the perils of meat eating (YA Letters, May 26) was most interesting and the reply by David Barratt supporting meat consumption seemed well reasoned.

However, neither correspondent mentioned the negative effects on health from being a vegetarian or vegan but which was well illustrated some years ago by a work colleague's wife, a senior staff nurse at a large East London hospital.

Quite frequently, vegetarians were admitted in a dreadful state but in a few days left the hospital with grateful thanks, feeling fit once more, and having cost the NHS a lot of money. They were never told that the life-saving protein administered to them came from animals.

Equally sad is that a friend's daughter in her early 20s and a married mother, decided as a child to be a vegetarian.

She has to make up her dietary deficiencies with vitamin supplements which seems wrong for someone so young. All this does not seem to

All this does not seem to align with Mr Kerswell's 'significant health benefits'.

Vote for Little Havens

LOCAL National Lotteryfunded charity, Little Havens Children's Hospice, is calling on the people of Southend to vote for them in the semifinals of The National Lottery Awards 2010. The Little Havens

Children's Hospice in Thundersley, which provides respite breaks and end-of-life care for children and teenagers living with life-limiting and life-threatening illnesses, is one of only 10 projects to make it through to the semi-finals in the Best Voluntary/Charity Project category of The National Lottery Awards, which are an annual search to find the UK's favourite Lottery-funded projects

Lottery players raise £25million every week for projects and organisations across the UK and the awards recognise the difference that those Lottery-funded projects make to local communities.

The Little Havens
Children's Hospice now needs the public's help to reach the final stage of the competition.
Anyone can vote by going www.lotterygoodcauses.org.u k/awards or calling 0844 686 5047. Voting ends at midday on Friday, June 18.

All of the projects in the running have already received Lottery funding and the winning project in each of the seven categories will receive national recognition on a BBC 1 TV show later this year and a £2,000 cash prize

Hamas is a terrorist organisation

THE writer who alleges that Israel behaved illegally in boarding the Marmara (YA Letters, Jun 9) is neglecting one thing - reality.

Hamas is a known and Hamas is a known and declared terrorist organsiation whose charter has as its main aim the destruction of Israel.

No democratic country in the world would take the risk, that a flotilla destined for a terrorist run country whose sole aim was to destroy it, was not carrying arms.

not carrying arms.
As it happens, the humanitarian peace ship Marmara was not carrying any humanitarian aid but was carrying people belonging to another known terrorist organisation based in Turkey.

Those people are known to have been seeking martyrdom and made martyrdom videos for their families before they left on their peace mission to Gaza.

True peace and the delivery of aid was really the last thing on their minds.

Lewis Herlitz Westleigh Avenue, Leigh

All residents should have their say

IN reply to Mr Tony Morris (YA Letters, Jun 9), the main issue raised in SKIPP's letter (YA Letters, Jun 2) in reference to the felling of the poplar tree on Westcliff Parade was not whether the tree in question was diseased.

We, in fact, stated clearly that we accept trees sometimes need to be removed.

The real issue we raised was of comprehensive notification which allows time for residents to question the decision if they wish to do so.

Mr Morris may well have received a letter from the council referring to this particular tree, however, many local residents, it would appear, did not SKIPP was contacted by several members of the public about this tree. Three of these were nearby residents (one in Wilson Road, two in Clifftown Parade) and none had received notification.

It is unacceptable to notify just a handful of residents. All residents within a reasonable radius (say 1/4m) should be notified, and in this case, where the tree in question was in a prominent location, notification should also be given in the local media.

Patsy Link, Sheena Walker and Mark Sharp SKIPP Committee

going?

HAS anybody else noticed that counties are now being omitted from our addresses, even from official letters?

Rumour has it that eventually the name and address will also be omitted and there will just be a series of numbers and letters replacing the name and address completely.

our verdict

The Daytona track was really good. We got the chance to do loads of laps because we got half and hour on the track. It was a bit hot because it was a really warm day, and my gloves were a bit slippery on the wheel at the end. I came first in the race which I was really pleased with. Josh came fourth so he did really well too. We were racing against four other boys. The track was quite big and there were lots of turns and I skidded a couple of

Joseph Chambers, 12

I love karting. It's really fun. We went to Daytona at Sandown Park this time and it was quite a long drive. I couldn't wait to get there. It was so good. We had to watch a safety video first and then we got half an hour on the track. I went round it loads of times. It was fun. We all got print outs when we finished which showed us where we had come in the race and all the different times for our laps. I did 31 laps and my fastest was 38.278 Joshua Chambers, 9 seconds!

Life in the fast lane

LIZ WADE and her two boys head for the racetrack on their visit to Daytona Sandown Park in Surrey

HE race was on during a visit to Daytona Sandown Park in more ways than one. I knew that I had to get to the Surrey karting track half an hour before the boy's session, so set off in plenty of time with a prepared

Although a traffic jam didn't leave me that worried, a wrong turn that took me to the main entrance to Sandown Park's horse racing track did.

As the clock was ticking past our due arrival time, we began to panic slightly as we could see the karting track across the racecourse, but didn't know how to get to it.

After eventually navigating our way around the Sandown course we eventually turned up 15 minutes before the boys were due on the track

With the panic over, the boys quickly filled in their registration forms on Daytona's computers, before rushing into the changing rooms to put on their racing suits.

They reappeared, with excited grins across their faces, and then entered a safety briefing room. Once inside the boys, and four other children who would be joining them on the track, were shown a short safety film. The video told them lots of things to do and not to do on the track, and informed them of what all the flags and lights meant. It also reminded them to behave themselves on the track and to drive safely or they could find themselves in the sin bin - a special area where they would have to sit in their kart for a specific number of seconds before being allowed to return to the track. After the video the boys were tested on what they had learnt, including what the track's different flags and light signals meant. After passing with flying colours they then had their helmets and special neck braces fit-

The track staff are very safety conscious and check each child to make sure the safety gear they are wearing is properly fitted, before then checking once again that they are securely fitted into their karts.

After making a note of which number karts the boys were in, as they all looked so alike in their racing gear, I then watched them make their way down to the starting line for a rolling start.

They set off for lap after lap of fun. The boys absolutely love get-ting behind the wheel and with half an hour of karting heaven ahead of them they looked quite at home. As we had turned out on quite a hot day I had wondered how the boys would cope in the heat in their driving suits and hel-mets, but I shouldn't have worried as they both took the whole experience in their stride.

The boys absolutely loved Davtona Sandown Park, and I thoroughly enjoyed watching them. They got so much out of the experience and were elated with their print outs, analysing everything from their fastest laps to what position they had come in the overall race. Joseph was delighted with his first place and Joshua was very pleased with achieving fourth out of six children.

As well as its Arrive and Drive sessions, which run on specific dates after school, at weekends and during school holidays, Daytona Sandown Park also runs karting parties and a Junior Race School. The school is made up of five different modules, costing £55 each, which cover all aspects of karting, both theory and practical. After completing all five modules children are then able to become members of Davtona's InKart Club and race on the last Sunday of every month.

Children from the age of eight to 15 can race as Daytona Sandown Park. All cadet drivers must be at least 4ft 1ins tall while all junior drivers must be at least 4ft 8ins tall. Adults are not allowed on the track at the same time as juniors, and children must be accompanied and signed-in by their parent or legal quardian, or be with a responsible adult and have a presigned parent or guardian consent form with them.

A. While you personally may feel perfectly at home with technology, that doesn't mean that everyone else does. For a lot of people, it's actually quite an alien environment – or at least expert hele.

ALAN KIRKMAN is Director of Essex TEAM-part of the UK's largest branded network of independent estate agents, with 50 computer linked offices across the country and 500 more nationwide. Managing Director of Tudor Estates in Southend, Alan has been an Estate Agent for expert hele. actually quite an alien environment - or at least, not one in which they feel sufficiently comfortable to contemplate selling their most valuable asset without expert help. Besides, let's not forget that none of the top national property websites accept listings from private sellers - which rather defeats the whole

Of course, it's not totally impossible to sell your own home by yourself. Nevertheless, hardly anyone does. Nor have people exactly rushed to patronise those so-called internet agents who offer a minimal service.

Why is this? Well, for the simple reason that that there is a whole lot more to selling your home than sticking a homemade board in your front garden and an ad in your local paper – or online, come to that. Even assuming that you actually succeed in generating some enquiries, how do you sort the wheat from the chaff, the serious applicants from the complete timewasters? Leaving aside the security implications of letting total strangers into your home, do you really have the time or the knowledge to handle all the viewings yourself, answer any queries and present your home in the best possible light? How do you qualify would-be buyers, to ascertain their financial circumstances and their ability to proceed with the purchase? Where do you turn for the expert advice and support you need to deal with all the stressful situations that can arise - for example, when your buyers come back demanding a price reduction on the basis of a problem unearthed by their survey? How do you go about monitoring the progress of the sale, and how do you deal with delays with other transactions up and down the chain?

In fact, the more you think about it, the more amazing it is that anyone should want to try and handle all this on their own. But then again, minimising stress and maximising peace of mind have never been exactly high on the agenda for your committed DIY-er...

Ask The letting Agent Tony Lindberg

AS A LANDLORD AM I RESPONSIBLE FOR OBTAINING AN ENERGY PERFORMANCE CERTIFICATE (EPC) ON MY RENTAL PROPERTY?

England and Wales

Yes, from 1st October 2008 all rental properties with a new tenancy in England and Wales will be required to have an EPC.

Under all circumstances it will be illegal to advertise any property to rent after the introduction of the legislation unless it has an EPC.

Failure to obtain a certificate will result in a fixed penalty fine (to the Landlord). This will be administered by the Trading Standards Office for non-compliance. Legislation allows for a fine of £200 for failure to comply.

The EPC will remain valid for 10 years.

Scotland

Yes. All tenants of properties rented (new rentals only) on or after 4 January 2009 will require to be provided with an EPC as part of the lease agreement. EPCs should be produced by a member of a protocol organisation and are valid for a period of 10 years. If the tenancy changes within this period the EPC should be passed to the next tenant. Under the terms of building legislation the building owner is required to affix the EPC to the building (for example the EPC is placed in a meter cupboard).

Northern Ireland

Yes. This will be introduced in a three phase rollout which commences from June and should be complete by December 2008. As with the English & Wales ruling, a certificate should be produced prior to the property being available for viewing.

Volkswagen joins luxury 4x4 market

by Steve Walker

BIG 4x4s have to tread a fine line these days. The size and ostentation that drove their rise in popularity still appeals, but the same qualities have been singled out for criticism on social and environmental grounds.

environmental grounds.
As luxury SUVs go, Volkswagen's Touareg has always been one of the more discreet options and today's second generation model sets out to tread even more softly without forsaking the guilty pleasures that attract customers to these goliaths of the passenger car world.

Despite its mechanical similarity to the Audi Q7 and Porsche Cayenne, Volkswagen's luxury off-roader benefited from the low key image that comes with a VW badge.

With overbearing rivals like the Cayenne and the Range Rover drawing fire (often unfairly) for their perceived profligacy, the Touareg was more likely to slip under the radar - a quality that many buyers appreciated as much as the comparatively reasonable pricing.

Today's Touareg is essentially more of the same, albeit roomier and more efficient.

The engine line-up assigned to the Touareg kicks off with Volkswagen's 3.0-litre V6 TDI diesel. It's a 237bhp engine that will have ample muscle about it for most tastes thanks to nearly 550Nm of torque 550Nm of torque.

If, however, buyers feel that they need to get closer to take-off velocity when powering up that motorway on-ramp, there's always the 4.2-litre V8 TDI.

This engine is a bit of a brute with 335bhp and a smidgeon shy of 800Nm. It's of 800Nm. It's more torque than in that world champion of waft, the Rolls-Royce Phantom.

Despite these impressive oil-burners, the real talking point in the Touareg line-up will be the hybrid model.

It's the first production VW to employ an electrically-assisted powertrain and it features a 3.3-litre supercharged V6 petrol engine mated to an electric motor.

This is what's called a 'full this is what scalled a full hybrid', referring to the fact that the electric motor can operate independently of the petrol engine. It allows the Touareg to operate

It allows the Touareg to operate solely on electric power at speeds of up to 30mph.

With both sources working in tandem, the 375bhp Touareg Hybrid will get to 62mph in 6.5s and hit a 149mph top speed.

This Touareg is bigger than the

This Touareg is bigger than the original, a car which lagged a little behind other luxury 4x4s on size.

An extra 40mm has been incorporated into the wheelbase bumping the vehicle's overall length up to 4,758mm. The car is no wider, which will help when parking it, and 20mm lower but more salient is the fact that this larger Touareg is actually 200kg lighter than the previous model.

The styling borrows from the latest Volkswagen themes at the front end with a wide shallow grille, LED lighting and slated air intakes.

It's the usual classy Volkswagen cabin inside and the Touareg should stand comparison to the best that the luxury 4x4 sector can offer in terms of its fit and finish.

Unlike some of its contemporaries which have a seven-seat option, it's only offered in five-seat guise but those seats do slide and recline to make occupants more comfortable.

The boot is a capacious 580 litres, extending to 1,642 litres with the rear seats folded down.

The Touareg

range is divided up into SE, Altitude and Escape trim levels but the Hybrid model stands apart from this, acting as a trim level in its own right. All models get an eight-speed automatic gearbox while most come with satellite navigation and leather trim.

Of all the Touareg trim levels, it's the Escape that's most intriguing. This comes with the full package of mud-plugging equipment that Volkswagen has dubbed 4XMO-TION. It runs to reduction gearing, two lockable differentials and five special settings for the all-wheel-drive system which can be engaged according to the terrain.

Lots of people love their luxury 4x4s but are less enamoured with the way such vehibeen unfairly held up as symbols of automotive excess.

Volkswagen's Touareg has always been one of the less brash choices in the marketplace and the latest model makes it even harder for any such allegations to stick.

The luxury 4x4's image may have taken a dent, but few other cars can do what it can with such a small impact on the environment.

With stop/start technology, a high-tech hybrid powertrain and lightweight construction, the Touareg is cleaner than ever yet retains the power, protection and practicality that have underpinned its popularity.

Holiday driving

by Jonathan Crouch

RITONS probably spend more time dri-ving while on holiday than they do at home, according to recent research.

In a survey of National Car Rental customers, 42 per cent said they planned to drive over 500 miles while abroad on holiday this year. Forget the M6, Britons are getting their kicks on Route 66 along with a whole host of other great driving destinations, relishing the freedom and flexibility of selfdrive holidays.

While the distances appear huge, most people plan to complete their road trips in eight to 14 days; perhaps allowing for the odd unscheduled diversion or encounter with the locals both residents and wildflife!

This may be based on previous experience as 68 per cent said they had got lost while driving on past holi-days abroad and 53 per cent said they had encountered confusing and unclear road signs along with local driving eccentricities.

The need for vigilance is further reinforced with the feedback that 41 per cent of respondents had come across wildlife in the road while driving on holiday! In the research, customers were also quizzed on their top tips for driving abroad. Preparation came top as the most frequently offered piece of advice, along with tips such as planning fuel stops and getting to know your car before setting off.

National's 'Drive Safe website (www.national drivesafe.co.uk) is useful in this regard.

Drive Safe provides information on city driving, country driving, road rules and road safety initiatives within each country.
There is also information on driving regulations and requirements, essential local knowledge and advice on motoring laws such as speed limits on motorways, alcohol limits and road tolls. The recent update to the site has seen Bulgaria, Lithuania and Jordan added to the already extensive list of more than 45 countries now on the website. Top Tips:

* Buy a good map and plan your route before you go.

Research driving hints and tips for the country you are visiting.

* Stay relaxed - remember you are on holiday. * Stay within the speed limit and be aware of local laws. After a long flight, pick up your car the next day.

for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD) A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility, www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

Find the right job for you

Merchant Navy

A life on the ocean waves

THERE'S nothing like bobbing up and down on a supply vessel alongside an oil rig in the North Sea in a Force Eight to test your sea legs.
But don't be put off. A life at sea has plenty of attractions. For a start, you can travel the world (several times) and get up to adventures in the ports of exotic, far-flung countries. Ultimately, you can progress up the ladder to captain your own ship (how cool is that?) British seamen command respect across the world, which creates job opportunities for those with itchy feet. A ship needs all sorts of specialist skills – mechanics, engineers, cooks, deckhands - while the officers sit as part of the management team and are proficient in navigation, computer systems, satellite knowledge, communication, staff management, administration plus some legal skills.

There's also a great variety of vessels. On one hand there are ferries, coasters and fishing boats who rarely travel far from the sight of land. Then there are the deep sea vessels who sel-dom see land – survey ships, tankers, bulk carriers and mining vessels. Ships are continuously in operation, and 12-hour shifts are common. You could work 12 weeks on, 12 weeks off, but modern fleets often expect you to work 12 weeks on, six weeks off.

More than 20 UK companies sponsor around 600 cadets each year as they study seamanship, first aid and safety at sea before spending time on board under the guidance of a deck officer. Training on land and sea can last up to British-trained officers are much in demand, and when you tire of life at sea, you'll be in line for a decent shore-based job with one of the port authorities around the coast of Britain.

Captain Barrett heads for Roots Hall exit

Southend United

SOUTHEND United captain Adam Barrett could be heading out of Roots Hall after being placed on the transfer list.

The 30-year-old handed in a written transfer request which the club has accepted and his availability has been circulated to other clubs.

Barrett played 41 matches last season as Southend were relegated from League One.

Goalkeeper Steve Mildenhall has also signalled his intentions to leave after his name appeared on

In a statement, Southend said: "The club's directors and management would love to retain his services, however it understands Barrett's desire to play at a higher level at this stage in his career and has reluctantly agreed to allow the player to seek a new club.

"Southend United also confirmed that it will not stand in the way of any of its senior players, several of whom are still on Championship level salaries, who may also want to transfer to an alternative club if appropriate transfer fees can be agreed with any interested parties.

"The decision to grant Barrett and other senior players transfer requests has to be balanced against the wage constraints that Southend United and all clubs will operate under in League Two, which is subject to a Football League salary cap.

The Blues cannot register players under terms of a transfer embargo set by the Football League after the PFA paid wages for the players in January.

However, a club's spokesman said: "It is not correct for certain sections of the media to suggest that all of our players were still unpaid for May.

"Ninety-five per cent of our players and staff have been paid for May with the remaining staff due to be paid in full in the near future.'

Shepherd Neame Essex Cricket League

PREMIER DIVISION

LEADERS Wanstead proved their class with a crushing 261-run victory at Loughton on Saturday.

The hosts won the toss and put Wanstead into bat first, but it proved to be a costly decision as centuries from Arfan Akram (116) and Milan Patel (107), plus a knock of 71 from Merv Westfield saw Wanstead declare on 353-4.

Loughton's batsmen had no answer to the bowling of Maurice Chambers and Mohammed Fayyaz Khan. Each took 6-28 and 4-9 respectively as Loughton found themselves at 40-7 at one stage. A knock of 34 by Stuart Greenhill was Loughton's only innings of note as they were all out for 92.

Chelmsford move into second place with a four wicket win over Hainault & Clayhall.

Irfan Shah (123) and Mousshin Ismail (73) helped Hainault to 247-6, but consistent scoring from Chelmsford, including 85 from opener Paul Jones saw them home.

Nothing could separate third place Brentwood and fourth place Colchester & East Essex who played out a Brentwood put up 276-9 declared (Nuwan Shiroman 69), and had Colchester in real trouble at 1-2. However, Atamad Ul Hag's innings of 70 was their only score of note while Andrew Kennedy's 30 saw them hold on with 146-9.

Woodford Wells picked up the points with a six-wicket victory at Ilford. Kandola scored 66 as Ilford put up 209-8 which Wells managed to overhaul with Nathan Price hitting a superb 105.

In the clash at the bottom, Gidea Park & Romford and Upminster played out a draw. Upminster put up an impressive 300-6 declared, with Andrew D'cruz hitting 127, backed up by Shafiq Rahman with 70.

Gidea Park were in trouble on 120with Oliver Peck taking 4-48. However a 74 from Carl Greenridge helped them survive to take the draw with 202-8.

DIVISION ONE

ARDLEIGH Green continue their winning ways in the league, beating early pace setters Shenfield by four Shenfield went into bat first and were all out for 181 (Elliot Richtor 62) as Ali Aslam took 4-53. Consistent innings from Ardleigh's batsmen (Thomas Oakley 51) saw them

South Woodford stay second after being held to a draw at home by third place Orsett.

Kevin Sargeant (75) and Jason Plom helped Orsett to 266-9, and despite Max Shirt hitting 84 for South Woodford, a slow run rate plus impressive bowling from Orsett saw them finish on 207-8

Hornchurch are beginning to hit their stride after winning by five wickets over Chingford.

Jamie Went (3-31) and Mark Whitlock (3-70) picked up the wickets as Chingford were 177 all out, while Billy Gordon (50) and Chris Sains (68 not out) helped Hornchurch to the points.

Hadleigh & Thundersley picked up the spoils over Fives & Heronians, winning by 180 runs to dump the latter into the bottom two.

Good knocks of 87 and 75 by Adam Fleming and Oliver Wagstaff respectively helped Hadleigh to 281-7 declared, while Dan Jackson took 5-21 as Hadleigh made short work of Fives' batsmen as they were 101 all Westcliff on Sea move off the bottom, replaced by Hutton, after winning by 10 runs.

Apology...

IN last week's Yellow Advertiser we spelt the name of a winner at the South Essex College of Further and Higher Education's annual sports award incorrectly.

Lianna Giannotti, 18, from Basildon, won the Sportswoman of the Year category.

We apologise for any upset caused and congratulate Lianna on her achievements.
